

Hire Intelligence

“Well, it’s not so much the act of renting on your part that helps you go green. But if renting for a temporary project stops you from buying a new machine, that can be a green act. The rental machine can be used over and over by various people, meaning that none of those people are buying new, and that is a good thing.

The real act of green is carried out by the computer rental company, if they have shown the initiative to implement an end-of-life program for old technology. And guess what - Hire Intelligence have! In addition to renting computers to your business for your short and long-term needs, we will help you dispose of your old equipment in a responsible manner.

Why does this matter? Australia is one of the few developed countries that still allow E waste to be dumped in landfill. This is broken up and over time leaches out into groundwater, contaminating soil, waterways and ultimately our children.

Fortunately, there is a way to dispose of your old IT equipment and care for the environment at the same time. We'll collect your old computers, destroy the hard drive, and recycle it. If you're upgrading your fleet, we'll collect the old computers you no longer want and find them a new home. That means no fines for breaching environmental laws, and protection of your image as a responsible business.

Now there's a point of difference worth considering! There's a reason we're called Hire Intelligence.”
